Storm may have forced altered Beach repairs

BY DENA BISNETTE
The Hancock County Board of Supervisors may have to alter its original Beach repair plans for a more comprehensive project.

Board President and Beat Supervisor Ronald Cuevas said the supervisors expect to discuss the matter on Monday.

He said an inspection of the road after Tropical Storm Beryl's wind and rain had indicated that South Beach Road is deteriorating more rapidly than originally believed.

"We're definitely going to have to change directions," Cuevas said.

The supervisors had planned to repair about a mile of the road, complete with drainage, using seawall money. Cuevas said he is certain that doing more extensive repaving would not leave enough money for the one-mile project.

County Engineer Larry Seal said "a lot" of the pavement was lost in the storm, and County Maintenance Superintendent Bill Johnson added that in some areas patching was not enough.

Instead, layers from previous patchwork were scraped off the road.

Johnson and Seal both called the repairs "temporary," saying they hope more permanent work can be done in Spring.

Cuevas added that any project other than the temporary work the board decides to do on the road, which has been closed except to light traffic since Hurricane Elena in 1985, would be delayed until after storm season ends in October.

Cuevas said the resurfacing, if the board approves it, would probably begin in the Washington Street area and end at Buccaneer State Park.

"I don't think we would have to go past Buccaneer. The road is still concrete down there and is more sound."

He added that resurfacing it with concrete might last longer, but would be extremely expensive and therefore unlikely.

The road problems will not alter any current plans regarding the seawall or sand beach, Cuevas explained.

"The problem is not the seawall. It's the water that gets over the seawall and over the road," the board president said.

He pointed out that in Harrison County, the road running along the beach is 10 feet higher than water level. In Hancock County, where the difference is as little as two feet in some places, storms such as Beryl often inundate the road.

Cuevas commented that a new method of repair might have to be tried because "what

United Way sets $70,000 goal

BY JANET MCQUEEN

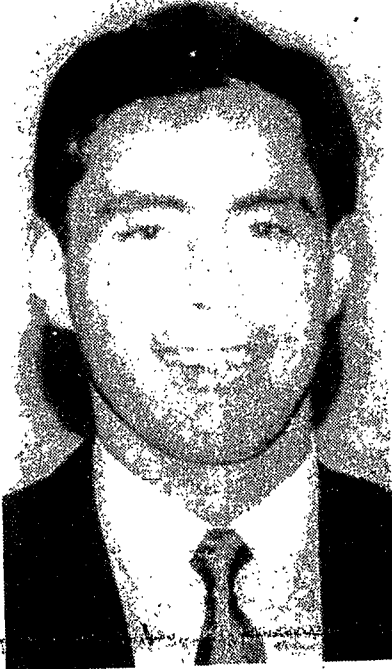

David A. Treutel Jr. will chair the 1988 Hancock County United Way campaign. A goal of $70,000 has been set by the board of Directors, according to Charles B. Benvenuti, president.

Treutel, vice president of Treutel Insurance Agency Inc., served as co-chairman of the 1987 campaign and directed the small business segment. Chairman was Lonnie Clayborn, manager of Sears Catalog Store.

This year's goal represents a $5,000 increase over the 1987 collection.

"The United Way is one civic organization where local contributions go directly into the community," Treutel stated. "Other charities are certainly worthwhile, but funds are diluted into the national offices. All of our dollars stay in Hancock County."

Nineteen agencies are currently supported by the Hancock County United Way.

DAVID A. TREUTEL JR.

Among these are the Gulf Coast Mental Health Center, Hancock County Emergency Relief Center, Senior Citizens Programs, Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP) and Goodwill Industries.

Also supported are the Hancock County Fireman's Doll and Toy Fund, Hancock County 4-H Program and Boy and Girl Scouts. Two new agencies were added last year, the Gulf Coast Women's Center and St. Michael's Home for Boys.

"The bulk of our contributions are received in the form of payroll deductions," according

Emergency numbers to be assigned

Work will begin next week in preparation for a county-wide, enhanced 911 emergency calling system.

Hancock County Tax Assessor Edward Murtagh said workers from his office will start going door-to-door next week assigning numbers to all the houses in the county.

The numbers will correspond to a map of the county and the tax rolls so when a person dials 911 emergency units will know exactly where to respond and who lives there.

While the emergency system is not scheduled to go into effect until October 1989, the Postal Service will begin using the numbers as mailing addresses shortly after they are assigned.

The workers will begin in the northwest part of the county first and will finish on the coast.

"The workers will be carrying money will be collected. If anyone asks for money, do not give it to them, they are not from the Tax Assessor's office."

UNITED WITH MASTER—Mrs. Bert Glamann of Lakeshore is reunited with her dog Chippie who was rescued from her burning home by BaySide Firefighter Cindy Guillot in an early Friday morning fire. Guillot said the little dog was found shaking in a corner of the house. The Glamann's were at the doctor's having tests made when county worker Stanley LeBlanc passed the Lakeshore Cut-Off Road residence and spotted smoke pouring out. Two pumping units from both BaySide and Clermont Harbor and 15 volunteer firefighters controlled the fire in the kitchen area. Marnie Schwartz, acting Clermont Harbor fire chief, said the fire apparently started in a fluorescent light in the kitchen. Damage to the residence was estimated at $35,000 by Schwartz. ## Three children rescued after four hours on river

BY DENA BISNETTE

Three Pearlinton children who spent almost four hours stranded on an innertube in the Wolf River survived the incident without injury.

Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson said 12-year-old Letty Boelte, her nine-year-old sister Annie Boelte and their 10-year-old friend Cloie Frost drifted about three miles down the river on the tube and crossed into Harrison County before being rescued shortly after 8 p.m.

Peterson said the children and the mother of the two Boelte sisters, Hedy Boelte of Pearlinton, became separated by the current at about 4:30 p.m. just north of the Crane Creek Baptist Church.

The sheriff's department was notified at about 5:58 p.m.

According to Peterson, a number of Crane Creek residents assisted Boelte and law enforcement authorities in the search for the girls, who were found clinging to a tree branch at the Riverview Inn Bridge in Harrison County.

"We feel like we were very fortunate to find them just prior to dark," he said.

Assisting the Hancock County Sheriff's Department in addition to the local residents were Harrison County Sheriff's Department and Hancock County Dive Rescue Unit.

Peterson said he felt the children would have been found

Convention ignites political flame in Diamondhead teen

BY D.C. HARVILL

Adults expect normal 15-year-old boys to be preoccupied with computer games, a set of wheels and teenage girls. And, while Kevin Bourg, son of Jerry and Hilda Bourg of Diamondhead, by his own admission, is "just a normal kid," he differs from most boys his age in at least one regard. He has politics on his mind.

Kevin, whom his mother, a delegate to the Democratic National Convention in Atlanta, refers to as the "self-proclaimed Dukakis campaign manager," admits he didn't know much about politics until he was given an opportunity not readily available to most young people.

"I kind of got into it because my mom became a delegate," he says.

"I really became interested when the Gene Taylor campaign got under way. I really got into it. I started watching politics on television and began to learn what it's about."

"Politics is a lot different than what you are taught in school," he avers.

His real political education came when he accompanied his mother to the convention. During that event he changed from a teenager with an interest in politics into a die-hard Michael Dukakis supporter.

"During the convention I got to work at the Dukakis headquarters, and began to see how he had done so much for Massachusetts; he pulled them out of their deficit. I began to see that he could maybe do the same for the country."

Kevin is less than starry-eyed about the job Reagan has done as president.

"Reagan put us in a big deficit. The Republican party had eight years to show what they could do. Now, I think the Democrats should have a chance to show what they can do."

While working at the Dukakis headquarters

he answered phones and had to field questions about Dukakis and various aspects of his campaign.

"One lady called wondering why Dukakis didn't make a stronger showing during the beginning of the convention; Jackson had made such a strong start. She believed if Dukakis was supposed to win the nomination he should make a bigger stand."

"But I think she didn't really give him a chance. The first two days it was really Jackson, but the last part of the convention was when Dukakis made his stand."

Now Kevin is doing his own part to help Dukakis win the presidency.

"After the convention I was in Dallas for soccer camp, staying with my aunt and uncle. One night at dinner we got into a conversation about the convention. My uncle is a big Republican. Well, I just told them what I thought about Dukakis," he said.

"I don't think they had given him a chance at first. They didn't pay any attention to his platform. Now I think they are going for Dukakis. I hope they vote for him."

While he is a dedicated Democrat, Kevin thinks people need to look beyond a particular party.

"There are so many Republicans who see what Reagan has done. I hope they will look at both parties, not just at the Republican Party."

When not following politics, the St. Stanislaus sophomore finds time for activities more familiar to 15-year-olds.

"I like to play sports, and be around friends. I like going to camp and meeting new people. I like to travel out of town. I think it's fun."

As a Democrat living in a primarily Republican community, Kevin finds that people are basically all the same regardless of their political tendencies.

"If you go to some places you aren't socially accepted if you are a Republican or a Democrat, but it's not like that here. Diamondhead is a fairly large place. Dukakis carried Hancock County, so I think a lot of Republicans voted for him."

Bourg is certain politics will always have a place in his life, but isn't sure in which direction his ambitions lie.

"I was thinking I would like to go into political science but that was just because I was around politics. I started asking people who were in political science and it seems limited in what you can do."

"I don't want to be president or anything, but I will probably be in politics somehow. I still have three years of high school and at least four years of college. I really don't know what I will do."

"I guess it is the dream of most kids to be big. I don't want to be big, I just want to be happy. Kevin may not want to be big, but that doesn't stop him from thinking big."

"I see a lot of older folks who think just because kids can't vote, they aren't interested in politics. I want them to see that we are interested."

I feel lucky because I got to go to a convention. A lot of my friends didn't know what a convention was, but they were impressed that I got to go. I hope sometime in the future more kids will be able to go to these things and will be able to learn more about government because when you are there you get to see how it all works."

Calls concern Waveland police

Waveland Police think someone may be trying to lure people away from their homes, by using a telephone ploy, so they can break in while the houses are unattended.

Several Waveland residents reported phone calls this week in which an "excited black female" told them a member of their family had been arrested and that they should go to the police station to have them released.

Police Chief Donald Dorn suggests anyone receiving such a call remain at their house and contact the police on the phone to report the call and find out if there is any truth to the caller's message.

Mississippi residents to start filing taxes with Memphis IRS Center

Starting Jan. 1, Federal taxpayers in Mississippi will mail their tax returns to the Internal Revenue Service Center in Memphis, Tenn., according to Tully Miller, IRS district director.

The change in centers from the Atlanta Service Center will balance the processing and accounting workload of the IRS among all ten service centers nationwide. In recent decades population shifts have created the imbalance in workload.

One service center operation being switched over earlier than January will be the annual mailout of notices regarding unreported income.

Starting in early August of this year, approximately 37,000 Mississippi residents will receive from the Memphis center a notice regarding apparent underreporting of 1986 income.

The notices are generated as a result of the IRS document matching program when it appears that the taxpayer did not report income on their tax return based upon information the IRS received from payors on Forms 1099, W-2 and other information returns.

The IRS matches the information received from payors against the tax returns of the recipients of the income.

Between now and January, taxpayers should continue contacting the office identified on any notice, bill or correspondence received from the IRS.

The tax booklets mailed out this December will contain a preaddressed return envelope for mailing tax returns to the Memphis center.

SMOKE POURS OUT—Smoke pours out of the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Glamann, Lakeshore Cut-Off Road Friday morning. Mannie Schwartz, acting Clermont Harbor fire chief, said the fire apparently started from a fluorescent light fixture in the kitchen. The residence sustained damage to its electrical system, kitchen walls, and floor. It was estimated at $3-5,000 by Schwartz. Some 15 volunteer firefighters and two pumping units each from Clermont Harbor and BaySide responded to the fire. (Echo staff photo by Ellis Cuevas)

DeSalvo announces Beat Four candidacy

Martin DeSalvo of Bayou Phillips has announced his candidacy for Beat Four Supervisor.

DeSalvo, a native of New Orleans, La., is owner and operator of Mississippi K-9, a dog kennel and training service.

He is a graduate of McDonogh 16 School in New Orleans and served in the Merchant Marine during the Vietnam era.

DeSalvo, 38, is married to Debbie DeSalvo and they have two children, Shantel, 15 years old, and Joshua, 12.

DeSalvo said he has worked with neighborhood watch, assisted in designating Bayou Phillips as a bird sanctuary and has supplied "many area residents with trained K-9 dogs to make the area neighborhoods a safer place to live."

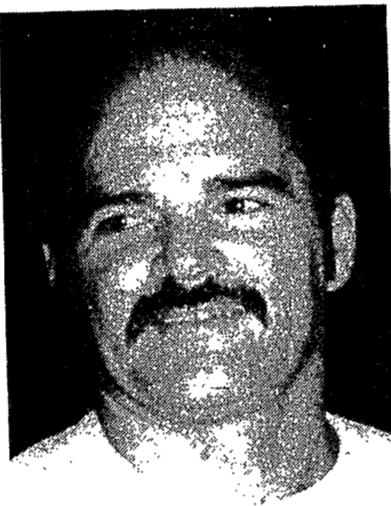

He also stated that he has helped clean-up the community, fight crime and provide other assistance to his neighbors "as a volunteer for many years on a 24-hour basis without receiving any compensation in return."

DeSalvo has outlined nine goals he hopes to accomplish as Beat Four supervisor; including a program to bring children and senior citizens together; implementation of a crime reduction system offering rewards to people who provide information leading to arrests and convictions; and improvement of road and bridge safety.

The candidate also wants to donate a portion of his salary to create a reward fund for arrest and conviction of criminal crimes; hold a monthly neighborhood meeting to brief residents who can not attend daytime board of supervisors meetings due to work schedules; try to create new jobs for Hancock County residents; reduce fire insurance ratings by creating a system to carry water to rural areas; and establish a program for troubled juveniles in coordination with Youth Court judges and juvenile officers.

"If you want good things to start happening in your neighborhood, vote for the man of the people," Martin DeSalvo, for your next Beat Four supervisor," the candidate said.

Road.....

we've done in the past hasn't worked."

The discussion may be confined to South Beach Road, which runs from US-90 back to Bayou Cadet and is in worse shape than North Beach Road, which runs from US-90 to the mouth of the Jourdan River in Cedar Point.

Seal said his windshield inspection of the road showed "About the same thing we have after any little blow—a little more asphalt gone and two or three places where the seawall's falling in."

Johnson said the rural areas were hit hardest after the beach road, with many roads underwater in Shoreline Park, Pearlington, Bayou Phillips, and other rural areas.

"One thing we found was in the south end, where we had gravelled 22 miles of road, was that it had really paid off," the maintenance superintendent stated.

"Even in the hard rains we are not having the problems we used to have with boggy roads."

He said that the graveling project is expected to continue.

The roads did need to be graded after the storm, and crews are concentrating on the main roads first, then working on the smaller side roads.

Johnson added that he hopes to return his crews to work on scheduled maintenance and requests from the public some time this week.

Also on Monday, Interim Beat Three Supervisor Bill Whitfield will take his oath of office.

Whitfield was named earlier this month as successor to Roger Dale Ladner, who recently resigned as part of a plea bargaining agreement in his "Operation Pretense" conviction.

However, Whitfield could not be formally sworn in as a supervisor until a public official bond was obtained. That bond is expected to be approved by the board on Monday morning.

The meeting begins at 9 a.m. in the upstairs boardroom of the Hancock County Courthouse.

BAYS 1988-1989 soccer meeting scheduled

Co-chairman responsible for this endeavor is Randy Costello, district manager of Mississippi Power Company. He will begin contacting businesses and industries in the near future to secure payroll deduction donations.

Benvenutti, a certified public accountant, expressed concern that persons employed in neighboring counties may be inadvertently supporting a United Way campaign other than Hancock County's through their payroll deduction plan. An individual wishing to verify that his contribution is received locally may contact Conrad Mauffray, executive director, at 467-6535.

The 1988 campaign kick-off is scheduled for early September, with an annual breakfast.

Quotables by CUEVAS

Many folks from Hancock County, such as Evelyn McPhail, Mississippi's Republican head, will be among those in New Orleans attending the party's convention this week.

The City of New Orleans will be in the limelight of newspaper, radio and television reports about the Republican convention.

We will be on the lookout, to see on television, those who we know, whom will be at the convention.

Many are wondering who George Bush's running mate will be, as he is a sure to be the party's presidential nomination.

It should be an interesting Fall with the general election coming up in November and the Republicans and Democrats both trying to woo voters.

There should be more folks from Hancock County at the Republican than were at the Democratic convention, since it is only a few miles from here.

We hope all of those attending the convention will really enjoy themselves.

A very interesting Chamber of Commerce Morning Edition is scheduled for Thursday, 7:30 a.m. at Scafield's Wheel Inn, Highway 90, Bay St. Louis.

Tom Tuttle, manager of Dupont's Delisle Plant will be the guest speaker.

Tuttle will be talking about Dupont's $100 million expansion at the Pass Christian facility.

Dupont's local officials predict a big economic boost to Hancock County's economy when the expansion begins early next year.

As many of you know, there are quiet a few Hancock County residents who are employees at Dupont in Pass Christian.

Libby Milner, chamber executive director, said she hopes there will a large turnout of chamber members and friends at the Morning Edition on Thursday.

We hope to see you there.

The recent higher than normal tides from the storm last week appear to have caused more damage to Beach Road in Hancock County.

Areas where the sand has been washed away appear to always receive the most severe damage during storms.

It will be good when our county leaders receive a report on the sand borings by the U.S. Corps of Engineers.

We realize our Board of Supervisors is concerned with Beach Road and would like to address the matter with a final solution.

The sand borings were taken about three weeks ago, so the county should be hearing something from the Corps of Engineers real soon.

It seems Beach Road will have to have some lasting repairs soon, or we may wake up one day and find parts of the roadway in the water.

To those who are really interested in the truth, I would suggest that they visit the shelter. It is located on Gulfside Drive in Waveland behind the fire station.

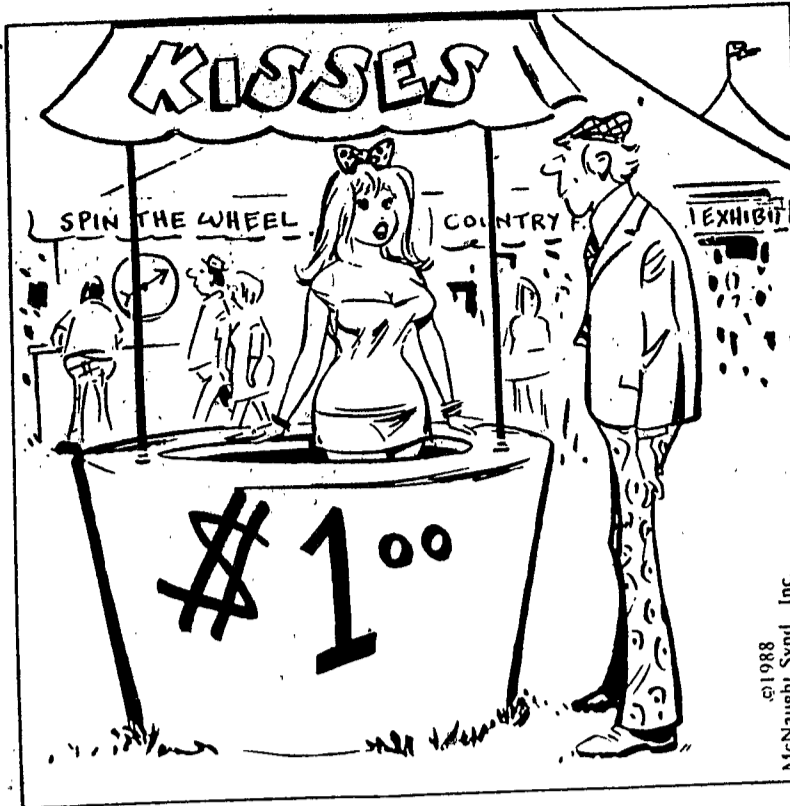

The hours are 9:45 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. on Tuesday through Friday and 9 a.m. to noon on Saturday.

NICARAGUA REFOCUSSED

After months of what can best be described as 'limited progress,' the totalitarian government of Nicaragua is moving in a wrong and dangerous direction.

For all practical purposes, the peace process broke down in early June. The Contras want a timetable for democracy. The Sandinistas want more time. But I say time is running short.

Just last week, Nicaragua accused the U.S. Ambassador there of state terrorism; an absurd charge. So, Daniel Ortega ordered him and several of our other diplomats to pack their bags and leave the country. He has also shut down the newspaper and pulled the plug on radio news operations.

In addition, his government has detained members of the opposition, arrested and jailed peace marchers and in one case, his army shot a trade union leader in the head.

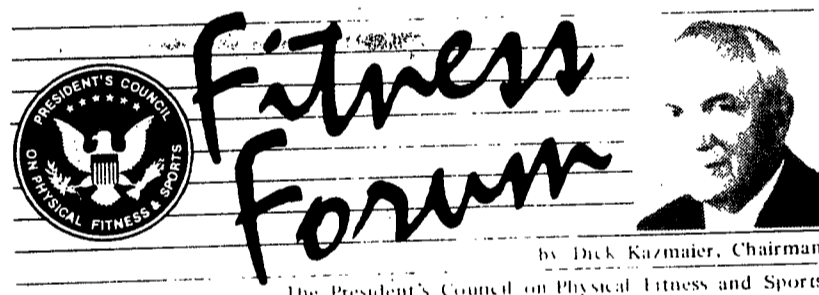

So what are we doing about it?

Well, we started by ordering several key Nicaraguan diplomats out of the United States. Then, the House of Representatives passed a resolution condemning the government of Nicaragua for its antidemocratic actions. But I think, as do the Contras, that actions speak louder than words.

I think it's time to start talking about resuming aid to the Contras. Yes, military aid if that's what the Contras need to fight for their freedom.

My feeling is that the Sandinistas are simply not interested in democratization at all. They are Marxist-Leninist. True colors have a way of shining through even the heaviest of smoke screens. In Nicaragua, the air is turbulent, but it's beginning to clear.

I say Daniel Ortega and his government are running out of time. In fact, many members of Congress on both sides of the aisle are beginning to see the light.

Physical Fitness Is Ageless

There is some good news on the horizon for all of us. We are living longer, and that means more years to enjoy the people, places and activities that make up our lives. It also means more reason to exercise regularly, now and as you get older.

While medical advances are extending the length of our lives, it is up to us to maintain the quality of our lives. One way to do this, of course, is to exercise regularly. Age need not be a barrier, even if you haven't been particularly active in the past. Everyone can enjoy the benefits of regular exercise.

And, the benefits are many. For people of all ages, exercise helps reduce the chances of developing such chronic diseases as heart disease, high blood pressure, obesity and possibly, arthritis. People who exercise often feel better about themselves and are better able to cope with stress. Studies show that regular exercise may even help you live longer.

There's a popular saying that tells us "everyone should exercise, but older people must." There are many good reasons for making this statement. For one, studies show that exercise helps increase your metabolism during and after a workout, which may help keep those extra pounds off.

People who are physically active also report having more energy during the day and a more restful sleep at night. With more stamina and vigor we can better enjoy the increased leisure time that accompanies us as we grow older. Also, we'll be better able to keep up with active friends, family and especially the grandchildren.

Weight bearing exercises such as walking, using light weights, and doing low-impact aerobics can help slow down the process of osteoporosis, a deteriorating bone disease common among older adults and especially women. Osteoporosis often is the cause of bone breakage, which can be very serious in older men and women. Weight-bearing exercises also will help improve and maintain your muscle tone and strength, which will help your posture as well.

Regular physical activity can also help alleviate some of the digestive and bowel function problems you may have as you get older. Stretching exercises increase flexibility in your muscles and joints, easing joint stiffness and increasing your mobility. Getting in and out of a car, up from a chair, and reaching and bending will be easier and the risk of injuring yourself will be reduced.

Although the physical benefits of exercise help maintain our health and keep us independent and self-sufficient, the emotional, social and psychological benefits of being physically active are equally significant. Taking part in a new activity, or an old favorite, may mean new friends and social activities. Or, you may find it more relaxing to exercise alone with your favorite music. Whatever activity you choose, it should be fun and something you look forward to doing.

If you haven't exercised for several years, or have a medical condition which may require special attention, check with your physician before starting an exercise program. Your doctor, or someone knowledgeable in exercise training, will help you design an appropriate exercise program.

Try to establish a routine, a special time and place to exercise that is convenient and fits well into your schedule. The activity most popular among the over-55 age group is fitness walking. This ideal aerobic activity can be done in your neighborhood, at a local track or in a shopping mall.

Eyes on Mississippi

By Bill Minor

JACKSON— Contrary to what a lot of legislators seem to believe, the business leadership in Mississippi would not oppose an income tax increase to raise teachers' salaries to the Southeastern average.

That is what is reflected by a June survey of 371 top business executives made by the Mississippi Business and Industry Political Education Committee (BIPEC), a conservative political action group.

The BIPEC survey showed that 61.2 percent of the chief executive officers and senior business managers favored increases in personal and corporate income taxes if needed to bring state teachers' pay to the regional average. Only 27 percent opposed such an increase.

In perspective, the 371 executives participating in the survey represent businesses which put almost $14 billion a year into the state's economy.

At the same time, the BIPEC survey also showed that 71.7 percent of the business executives supported Gov. Ray Mabus' goal of raising teachers to the Southeastern average, and only 14 percent opposed.

And some 89 percent of the business leaders agreed that a nationally recognized education system should be the No. 1 priority of the state in order to maintain a favorable business climate.

The 1988 Legislature voted to give teachers a $3,800 salary increase phased in over two years which is calculated to put the state close to the Southeastern average by the 1989-90 school year.

While the first step was implemented without a tax increase, the second phase, legislative fiscal leaders generally agree, will likely trigger a tax increase at the 1989 legislative session.

In fact, at a recent meeting, the Senate Finance Committee was told the Legislature may need to raise $140 million next year, because of "build-in" funding requirements, chief of which is the teacher pay hike, and the use of non-recurring funds in the 1988 session.

Dick Landford, executive director of BIPEC, said he was not surprised at the results of the survey in the area of public education and funding higher teacher pay. "Business recognizes that an educated public is essential to economic development and realizes that it is going to cost money," he said.

The poll, he said, "was a good cross-section of business and industry throughout the state, and was not centered in Jackson as some of these tend to be."

Landford pointed out that the "flip-side" of the survey is that business leaders, whole supportive of education improvement, "also want an accountable public education system."

Some 94 percent of the executives polled said they favored Mississippi teachers having to pass teacher proficiency tests periodically. And 92 percent of them said they believed the state's educational system is now something of a barrier to attracting key management or technical personnel from out-of-state.

Marketing Research Institute, a Jackson-based polling group which has done senior management studies in several other Southern states, assisted BIPEC in processing and analyzing the survey which included a wide range of issues.

Asked to rate various factors or institutions as to their positive or negative influence on Mississippi's business climate, the business leaders gave the highest positive rating—84 percent—to the governor's office.

While the question referred to "the governor's office" and not Gov. Mabus specifically, Landford said, "it would only be a presumption on my part, but if he (Mabus) had been perceived as doing a bad job, it would have been reflected in the poll."

Significantly, the senior business executives gave one of the highest negative ratings—55 percent—to county government and also gave the Mississippi House a 48 percent negative rating as compared to only 37 percent positive rating. The Senate barely got a 45 to 40 positive rating.

Availability of a qualified work force also got a high negative rating of 60-30, being edged out percentage-wise only by labor unions which got a 61 percent negative rating from the business executives.

What may be a bit surprising to many is that the top business leaders did not think that the state's tax system is hurting economic growth more than it is helping.

They rated the tax structure of the state as 39.6 percent positive, as opposed to 32.6 percent negative.

Governor's Weekly Column

Gov. Ray Mabus

This is the week that the Legislature will decide whether county government in Mississippi moves ahead or remains behind; whether it becomes more responsive, efficient and corruption free or not.

I have asked the Legislature to come back on Aug 10 to consider the unit system of government for all Mississippi counties. Study after study has shown that the unit system will result in better services at less cost.

And, the unit system will clearly help prevent the kind of corruption that has resulted in the indictment and conviction of 55 county supervisors in Mississippi as has occurred under the FBI's Operation Pretense. Many counties have already adopted some form of the unit system of government. I want to take this opportunity once again to congratulate them for this significant step. Their constituents have the comfort of knowing that their tax dollars are being used as efficiently as possible.

There is support in the Mississippi Legislature for this idea. Both the Mississippi House and Senate are on record voting for county reforms earlier this year, but attempts to reach a unit system compromise were cut short by legislative deadlines.

Lawmakers will now have another opportunity to make these badly needed reforms to county government. I have searched for common ground that will enable us to pass such legislation. Reasonable people can differ, but I firmly believe that the differences are not sufficient to continue to deny the citizens of Mississippi the obvious improvements that can be made.

In recent months, I have used this column to write about why we should go to the unit system of county government. In summary:

* It can work equally well in large and small counties. It has been successful in places as large as Rankin County and as small as Tunica and Coahoma counties.

* It is a proven cost saver. According to a study by Mississippi State University, Neshoba County reduced personnel costs by 14.5 percent; utilities and contractual costs by 51.5 percent; and the cost of materials by 53.8 percent.

* About 75 percent of all Mississippians support the unit system of government, according to a poll commissioned and published by Mississippi newspapers in June. Many of those newspapers have editorialized in favor of the unit system.

* The unit system will allow county supervisors to spend more time planning for the county's future in areas such as jobs and education. County services will be delivered on a day-to-day basis by county employees who work for, and are accountable to, the Board of Supervisors.

If you want a county government that provides better services at less cost, and one that is more resistant to corruption, please lend your support to passing the unit system of government.

BEFORE ALEXANDER—Vibrant colors, a strong sense of mood and deceptively simple composition characterize paintings by Francesca Koerner Young on exhibit at the Pass Christian Library until the end of August. "They are strong and forceful; you can't ignore them," Young says. Young attributes her sense of composition and detail to having done much work in photography and sculpture. In viewing the works, one gets a strong sense of Gestalt, that something is happening in the paintings that isn't visible to the eye. The mother of three refers to the exhibit of colorful work as "Before Alexander" because the paintings were done before the birth of her last child, Alexander. (Echo staff photo by D.C. Harvill)

One I-10 lane closed over Jourdan River

BY DENA BISNETTE
State Highway Department officials expect to know Monday how badly a median support column for the Interstate 10 Bridge over the Jourdan River has been damaged.

Chief Engineer Jim Quin stated Thursday that the left lane of the eastbound bridge has been temporarily closed due to damage discovered early last week. The right lane remains open.

Quin said the support column may have been hit by a barge. The damage was not storm-related and apparently occurred some time ago.

He added that inspectors were looking at the bridge Friday. Because the damaged section is underwater, divers had to be used to help assess damages to the column.

The department's consultants are expected to be able to provide specifications on the needed repairs shortly after damage reports are completed, which Quin said will be "in the next couple of weeks."

The highway department usually uses a 30-day advertisement for bids, but in the interest of expediting the repairs, the Jourdan River Bridge project will probably be handled under emergency procedures, the engineer added.

"We want to avoid any delays. We feel we need to expedite this," he said.

Quin explained that the emergency procedure allows the department to obtain quotes from contractors rather than advertise.

DuPont's operations manager to speak at Morning Edition

Tom Tuttle, unit manager operations at the DuPont DeLisle Plant, will be the featured speaker at the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce Morning Edition Coffee, set for Thursday at 7:30 a.m. at Scaffid's Wheel Inn Restaurant in Bay St. Louis.

In 1977, Tuttle was transferred to DuPont's Chambers Works plant in Deepwater, N.J. He held various supervisory positions in production and maintenance, in operations such as Polymer Products, 'Freon,' and Aromatic Intermediates during his tenure there.

In 1984, Tuttle was assigned project coordinator in Chemical & Pigments Departmental Engineer's office in Wilmington, Del. and held this position until his transfer to DeLisle in January 1986.

Accidental Discovery May End Obesity

WASHINGTON — Obesity may be controlled naturally with a new type of pill, discovered by accident, a research scientist confirmed recently.

In studies with potential cholesterol-lowering agents, scientists noted an unusual side effect. Patients receiving an ingredient in what is now being called FS-1 all lost weight, in spite of being instructed not to alter normal eating patterns, while body weight in control groups remained constant.

Scientists say the mechanism behind the weight reduction is not clear, but suggest it is partially due to a decrease in the intestinal absorption of calorie-rich dietary fats. Although scientists for some time have known of substances with the capability of producing this effect, the dramatic impact on weight reduction was not known until recently. Substances with a greater potential to block absorption will produce greater weight loss results.

The director of research and development at National Dietary Research, an organization committed to the investigation and research of nutritional solutions to world-wide health problems, stated, "The mechanism by which FS-1 works to decrease body weight is actually a more complex and sophisticated process called nutrification. When chewed and swallowed immediately before meals, FS-1 releases nutrients with low calorie content into the body, while high-calorie fats are eliminated, thus providing optimum nutrition and a minimum number of calories."

Studies with FS-1 indicate weight loss results clearly superior to products currently available for the treatment of obesity. In a comparative study by NDR, whose research topics have been the subject of articles published in recent medical and nutritional journals, FS-1 was found to be the most effective treatment for obesity and the most acceptable to patients.

The discovery comes as welcome news to thousands of obesity sufferers waiting years for this type of breakthrough. According to a spokesperson at NDR, "FS-1 can be made available to the public immediately, because it is not a drug and contains only natural ingredients recognized as safe. A drug with essentially the same weight loss capabilities might take as long as eight years to be available, due to lengthy delays encountered in the approval process." FS-1 is currently available on a limited basis through physicians and pharmacies, but may also be obtained directly from National Dietary Research, Suite 553, 1377 K St., Washington, DC 20005 for $24.98 plus $2 postage and handling. An instruction sheet for proper use and optimum results is provided with each bottle of 100 tablets.

Longo confirms split from tri-entity shelter

BY DENA BISNETTE

Bay St. Louis and Hancock County have until the end of 1988 to get out of a former tri-entity animal shelter being taken over by Waveland.

Members of the Bay St. Louis City Council, Waveland Board of Aldermen, Hancock County Board of Supervisors and Hancock County Animal Commission discussed the matter Tuesday night in one of the few local meetings not postponed by storms.

Waveland Mayor John Longo Jr., who has been advocating a break-up of an unwritten, informal agreement that established the shelter in July 1983, has repeatedly contended that the facility is too small to handle the needs of both cities and the county.

"You know where we stand, so let's listen to any ideas you may have," Longo told Bay St. Louis Mayor Victor Frankiewicz Jr. as the meeting began.

Longo has made it clear in several prior meetings where he and the Waveland Board stand on the animal shelter issue.

The shelter is located on Waveland property behind fire station #2 on Gulfside Drive. Longo wants the city to take over the facility and has told the other two entities that they need to make their own provisions for animal control.

To that end, the aldermen have already enacted an ordinance that will become effective next month and will create a city animal shelter commission with five members, one to be appointed by the mayor and one each to be appointed by the four aldermen.

The three entities give $400 per month each to fund the shelter, but Longo contends that the amount of "unseen costs" Waveland has to pay, including those of hauling bodies of euthanized animals for to the county landfill for disposal, puts most of the financial burden on Waveland.

Each entity put up about $5,000 to build the shelter and Frankiewicz asked about repayment if Waveland takes over the facility.

"I think with what we've put into you've got your money's worth, more than your money's worth," Longo replied. "We'll work something out."

Frankiewicz is against breaking up and building independent shelters, largely due to cost. He asked if the county might consider joining Bay St. Louis in a satellite shelter.

Beat One Supervisor Robert Peterson, who serves as his board's animal commission representative, and Beat Five Supervisor Michael Ladner said the supervisors need time to discuss the matter.

Ladner said they had never addressed the shelter issue.

Peterson favored continuing animal control as a consolidated operation if possible, "but I don't know if we can do it."

Longo suggested that the only alternative to splitting up would be to let the county, since it is the political entity covering all the people in the county, take over and finance the whole operation with a half-mill tax.

No one made any comments about that possibility.

The shelter presently has 22 dog runs and 12 cat cages. Some of these can be used to house several puppies and kittens at once, but all animals except those that are sick or injured must be kept five days before they can be destroyed, according to state law, Commissioner Ardley Hanemann explained.

The only exceptions are dogs and cats brought in by their owners, which can be killed immediately.

Longo said if the current shelter continues to be used two years at the current rates, there would be no choice but "Instant kill" due to the number of animals being brought there by owners or dog wardens.

Hanemann, accompanied at the meeting by commissioners Richard Fitch, Barbara Fitch and Lisa Coward, who also represents the Bay St. Louis City Council, stated that about 300 animals a month are destroyed.

"I'm not an animal lover, but I can understand how the animal lovers feel. You can let a ditch or a road go a few weeks, but if you kill a child's dog that should have been checked on, people will get upset and rightly so," Longo said.

Some of the information about the shelter was unclear. For example, Peterson has been told that the county dog warden brings in his catches every day, while Coward has stated that the county warden brings in large numbers of animals intermittently.

"I don't know where he's been keeping them, but when he comes in, he really bombards that place," she said.

When Coward asked about the possibility of the other entities contracting for animal care and disposal, the fees at Harrison County's shelter were stated at $10 per animal as well as $5 per dog and $3 per cat. That option, however, was closed because neither Bay St. Louis nor the county can afford to pay that amount.

The Hancock County Humane Society has been talking about establishing an additional shelter, one where animals will not be killed, with donated funds. Barbara Jo Fitch, a former president of the society, said she has confidence in the organization's ability to raise money and feels such a shelter could take some of the burden from the one being operated with public funds.

She described one she had recently visited in Illinois but noted that the society's shelter there leaves animals considered unadoptable in the public pound. In addition, those that are not adopted "after they've been in Humane Society shelter a long time" are sent back to the county shelter for euthanasia, leaving the county with that expense.

The shelter became an issue several weeks ago during a controversy over whether the existing 15-member commission would retain its Humane Society representatives. The controversy began to deal more with public funds last month after a veterinary advisor to the commission confirmed Longo's statements that the shelter is too small to serve three entities.

The supervisors and the Bay council members are expected to continue discussions on the matter.

When you use canned broth as stock, refrigerate if first, then skim off the fat before you heat it.

To avoid adding sugar when making applesauce, cook the apples in apple juice. Instead of white sugar to season any sauces which require a bit of sweetening use a teaspoon or two of frozen orange juice. If you do little things to help you watch your calorie intake, you will eventually find out that 'little things do mean a lot.'

PSC sets hearing on Elena rate case

Mississippi Power Company customers may see a very small refund—probably only about $2.50—in their electric bills soon.

The Mississippi Public Service Commission has scheduled a hearing August 31 to reconsider portions of a temporary $6.8 million rate increase granted to the Gulfport-based utility in December 1985 to help pay for damages caused by Hurricane Elena.

The PSC hearing is necessary because a state Supreme Court order last December disallowed $1.2 million of the increase granted to cover revenues lost by the company because of the Labor Day 1985 storm.

"Based on the Supreme Court order we anticipate the commission will order this small refund," Edgar Gilmore, MPC comptroller said. "I think both the PSC and the court recognized the terrible damage Hurricane Elena cause the company and so they approved all but a small portion of the increase."

Because utilities are required to pay interest on customer refunds, the actual amount of the refund would be more than $1.3 million. Gilmore said this would represent an average refund of only about $2.50 for a residential customer.

"The refund would be based on individual kilowatt-hour purchases," Gilmore said. "The refund is very small, but so was the increase."

Hurricane Elena caused almost $9 million in damages to MPC's lines, poles and substations, leaving 82,000 customers without electricity for up to six and a half days. It was the third major hurricane to hit MPC's 23-county service area in 16 years.

Social Security officer warns against direct mail solicitations

People in the Hancock County area have received direct mail solicitations asking that they pay $7 to join an organization purporting to provide many services related to Social Security, according to Caril V. Stephens, Social Security manager in Gulfport.

Stephens said there is no need to pay any firm to obtain services provided by Social Security.

In return for the $7 payment, this firm offers to provide a statement of a person's earnings covered by Social Security, a plastic card, and a guide to Social Security.

Any person can obtain a statement of Social Security covered earnings without cost by calling to request a statement of earnings form.

In addition, there is no need for a plastic Social Security card, Stephens said. The card issued is the only official card and should be used whenever a Social Security card is needed.

Free information about Social Security and free cards can be obtained at the Gulfport office. Call toll free 1-868-2900 for more information.

Exemplary nurses sought by NME

Four registered nurses who exemplify the best of their profession will be honored as "NME Nurses Who Made a Difference" in a nationwide contest sponsored by National Medical Enterprises Inc. Patients who nominate the winning nurses will receive $300 in cash awards.

Patients who have received exceptional nursing care during the past year and members of patients' families are eligible to enter the contest. They are asked to write a short description of the exceptional nursing care received, including specific examples of how the nurse's work demonstrated compassion, leadership or creativity.

A panel of NME nurse executives and other disciplines will judge the entries on the quality of the nurse's contribution, not on how well the entries are written.

Nurses eligible for nomination will work in NME hospitals including Northshore Regional Medical Center in Slidell, La. Nurses must be nominated by patients or patient's families. Entries from co-workers, employers or relatives will not be considered.

One-page descriptions of the nurse's exceptional contribution including the nurse's name, the name and address of the nurse's employer (i.e. hospital), and the entrant's name, address and phone number should be submitted to 'NME

Nurses Make a Difference' Recognition Contest, Professional Relations Department, National Medical Enterprises Inc., 2901 28th St., Santa Monica, CA 90405. Entries postmarked after Friday, Sept. 9 will not be eligible for consideration. Authors of the winning essays will be notified in mid-September.

ETV SPECIAL

Darkness descends on the African bushveld and the cycle of day and night begins. A pride of lions, composed of adult females and their cubs, sets off on its nightly hunt for food. Most hunts are unsuccessful and hunger is a constant enemy. Competition for the food that is available becomes a fight for survival.

'Lions of the African Night,' a rebroadcast of a 'National Geographic Special' more than three years in the making, at 7 p.m., Sunday, Aug. 21, on Mississippi ETV, reveals the secrets of Africa after dark.

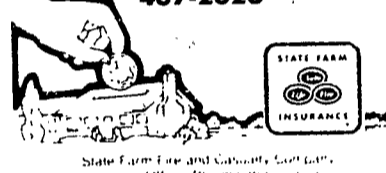

Viewers follow a pride of 30 lions as they continue the age-old behavior of the wild. While the lions are the undisputed stars of the program, the camera also captures a myriad of other animals that play roles in the African drama noir—baboons, apes, hippos, owls, frogs and more.

This program will be rebroadcast at 1 p.m., Thursday, Aug. 25.

Waveland dealer offers premises protection with AT&T system

Anco Security Services of Waveland has been selected as this area's exclusive dealer for the new American Telephone & Telegraph Company's Security System 8000.

The FBI reports one in four homes will be burglarized during the next four years yet fewer than 10 percent of U.S. homes depend on electronic security, said Jay Fleuriot of Waveland, Anco Security president.

"If you're looking for added security for your home and family this new AT&T system may be the answer," Fleuriot stated. "This highly reliable system is among the first wireless security systems to be listed under Underwriters Laboratories' new guidelines for residential systems," he said, "providing the same dependability of a wired system. It senses break-ins, fires and other emergencies, triggers a loud siren in the house and alerts a central monitoring station, such as a private security firm."

Only carefully chosen security professionals are selected to sell and install the system. With a wireless system, dealers can complete installations quickly, without damaging walls.

The new security system is one of the first to make use of the 40-megahertz frequency band, recently allocated by the FCC for security and control devices. Use of this band dramatically reduces the possibility of interference from garage door openers and other devices in or near the home.

The 40-megahertz band has another important advantage. These radio waves are about 24 feet wide—about eight times wider than the 300-megahertz waves used by most other systems. The wider waves mean that large objects in the home are less likely to block signals between transmitters and controller.

A display on the unit's control panel tells what type of alarm—fire or intrusion, for example, has been triggered and in what part of the house. The system monitors its own performance and the display shows when maintenance is needed.

At AT&T Security System 8000 will be customized to specific needs, Fleuriot added, based on a survey by Anco technicians. The cost of the system depends on the equipment needed for a particular home, he added.

With the 40-megahertz band, the wireless system can offer the homeowner similar protection to the 'hard wired' systems.

Both perimeter protection—all windows and doors—and motion protection interior movement—can be provided with a wireless system.

"Basic protection should include 24-hour fire protection and perimeter protection, together with good locks and lighting," explains Fleuriot who has been an area security dealer for several years. "Interior motion monitoring and protection on all levels of the home add further security."

"If you make the commitment to use it, a home security system can be a deterrent. It won't necessarily catch a thief, but it will scare him off," says Fleuriot.

"The old saying goes, if a professional burglar wants to get into your house, he will. But most burglaries are not committed by professionals. Most burglars are looking for homes without protection. If you have a system, they'll most likely go to a house without one."

Reflections

By Father Jerome
Ledoux, SVD

If you had an unlimited choice as to where you could live your whole life out, what kind of choice would you make?

I would not be the least bit surprised if you hedge in your answer, grasping for the best of both worlds: to be able to live in a place affording creature comforts, security and respectability; yet, to be able to live in the grace of God's house.

No matter how strong your desire for material benefits, you would still concur with the royal Psalmist:

"One thing I ask of the Lord; this I seek: To dwell in the house of the Lord all the days of my life." (Psalms 27:4).

David, perhaps, meant that literally, although he knew that it was quite impossible for him to be in the temple day and night every day of the year. This would be impractical even for a few days of each week throughout the year.

However, there is another and very real sense in which it is totally possible to live in God's house every day of your life. This other sense understands 'God's house' in the most meaningful way any human being can understand and experience it.

While the Jews believed that the temple in Jerusalem was the place most sacred to God, and therefore God's house, the Samaritans believed that the holy mountain in Samaria was most sacred to God, and therefore the place where God was to be worshiped.

Understandably, then, Jesus had to clarify this question to the woman whom he met at Jacob's well:

"Believe me, woman, an hour is coming when you will worship the Father neither on this mountain nor in Jerusalem...An hour is coming, and is already here, when authentic worshippers will worship the Father in Spirit and in truth."

Living in God's House

In other words, Jesus had little concern whether his Father was being acknowledged, thanked, praised and worshiped in the magnificent temple in Jerusalem or on the lofty heights of a holy mountain in Samaria, or anywhere else for that matter.

God's house as a building is clearly irrelevant in the mind of Jesus. His concern is not where his Father is being worshiped, but whether his Father is being worshiped in Spirit and truth.

This is a breathtaking view on the part of Jesus, to say the least. Without taking anything away from the importance of attending liturgies in churches, the observation of Jesus opens to you the crystal picture that God's house is wherever you find God.

What this can and should do for you is simply amazing. In fact, it seems just too good to be true. As long as you worship God in Spirit and truth, no matter where you are at any given time, you are living out what the Psalmist longed for so movingly: "To dwell in the house of the Lord all the days of my life."

Yes, believe it or not, this means that your house, together with your parents, spouse, children, siblings and relatives, is the house of God if your worship there is in Spirit and truth. It is your choice whether you and your family do actually dwell in the house of the Lord all the days of your lives.

Furthermore, your worship there in spirit and truth is far more than individual or family prayers and religious practices. First and foremost it is the worship stated by your very life.

"Looking after orphans and widows in their distress and keeping oneself unspotted by the world make for pure worship without stain before our God and Father." (James 1:27).

Whether at work, prayer or play, you should live in God's house.
